Public have their say on Calne homes proposal

A public consultation by Hills Group on its proposed plans to build around 200 houses on the edge of Calne attracted 54 visitors to Calne Town Hall.

The event, held on 7 July, gave local residents the opportunity to view the company's proposed plans for a development along Oxford Road.

Consultants and members of Hills staff were on hand from 2.30pm – 8pm to listen to those who attended and provide answers to questions raised.

Feedback gained at the exhibition will be used to inform a future outline planning application.

Nick King, group director Hills Homes said, "We were really interested to hear people's views on our proposal and to understand what their concerns are.

"In particular, we have managed to get a good idea of what it is that the people of Calne feel would be good for this particular area and will look to including as much of that into our plans as possible."

People who missed the exhibition can view details at www.hills-group.co.uk/consult and submit any comments online. The consultation period will close on Friday 22 July.
