Celebrating a unique partnership

This calendar marks the 30 year anniversary of a unique partnership between The Hills Group and Wiltshire Wildlife Trust.

The story began in 1990 when Hills initially provided funds for the Trust's work in the Braydon Forest area to the west of Swindon and the area now known as The Firs Nature Reserve. The woodland which was owned by Hills, was leased to the Trust for a peppercorn rent and was the start of the Braydon Forest Countryside Management Project.

In 1996, the financial support of the Hills Group increased significantly with the introduction of Landfill Tax. This new Government scheme required landfill operators to collect a tax on all waste going into landfill. As a landfill operator, Hills was allowed to divert some of the tax to registered environmental bodies and the Trust became the first organisation in the country to benefit from what is now known as the Landfill Communities Fund.

Since then, over £8.3 million in Landfill Communities Fund grants have been made available to the Trust by Hills. This funding has allowed the Trust to acquire many nature reserves, set up its own farming operations and continue with its regular conservation management work across the county.

"We are committed to giving something back for the benefit of all communities in Wiltshire. Supporting the Trust ensures that wildlife habitats are created and protected for the future generations to enjoy." Mike Hill, Chief Executive, The Hills Group

"One of our most important supporters over the past 30 years has been The Hills Group. A sincere thank you to Hills for their continued support, providing a measure of certainty and continuity as we seek to ensure that we can continue our priority conservation work during these difficult times". Dr Gary Mantle MBE, Chief Executive, Wiltshire Wildlife Trust.

Across Wiltshire, Hills' support for the Trust is covering the following projects and more:

- Four lakes, 25 acres of wetland, 13 acres of reed bed, 600 metres of the River Wylde at Langford, a visitor centre and an education centre at Langford Lakes nature reserve near Salisbury

- Creation and restoration of many flower rich grasslands and hay meadows such as Clattinger Farm which is home to over 60,000 snakeshead fritillary and 30,000 winged orchids

- 10,000 trees planted at High Penn Wood, Calne with the help of 100 volunteers, with a further 2,500 planted to soften the effects of Ash dieback on the site

- Otters returning to Wiltshire after 20 years of hard work, now often seen at nature reserves at Langford Lakes, near Salisbury, and Lower Moor, Cricklade

- A dragonfly project at Lower Moor and the Cotswold Water Park

- Waste and recycling initiatives, inspiring the next generation and much more...
